1. General Presentation

Welcome to Alsace!

Vineyards, mountains, cities and villages, traditions, food and drink, heritage, culture, and well-being. Alsace's sites and attractions captivate visitors from around the world, charmed by the pragmatic, generous, optimistic, and welcoming locals. At the heart of Europe, bordering Germany and Switzerland and running along the Rhine, the region boasts international appeal, attracting lovers of travel and exploration.

Original and private

Alsace has a strong sense of identity. Along the streets of its towns and villages, traditional façades showcase vibrant colours, while half-timbered houses accentuate the geometric details of its architecture. On the culinary side, traditional recipes celebrate the flavours of the region's terroirs, with ingredients sourced directly from local producers. In the sky, the poetic flight of the storks draws the curious gaze of visitors. From atop the Vosges Mountains, diverse panoramas and undulating peaks bring unexpected surprises.

> Colmar, the capital of Alsace wines, enchants visitors with its beautiful historic centre. A typical countryside town, it invites visitors to discover its rich and well-preserved heritage including Bartholdi's Statue of Liberty and the Petite Venise district. The not-to-be-missed Unterlinden Museum houses a masterpiece of Rhenish Renaissance art – Matthias Grünewald's Isenheim Altarpiece.

> Mulhouse, the European capital of science and technology museums, is home to a remarkable number of museums and exceptional sites. Visitors from all over the world come to admire the unique collections – vintage cars at the Musée National de l'Automobile, textile designs at the Musée de l'Impression sur Étoffes, and locomotives at the Cité du Train. Mulhouse also aims to make its mark through its creative industries and street art.

Unique things to see and do in Alsace

From iconic sites to hidden gems, Alsace has everything for an incredible journey. Rich heritage and surprises unfold through experiences meant to be shared. Unique and intimate moments for a new level of travel, a more authentic journey.

2. Beer tourism

Once upon a time: Alsace, beer, and brewing tourism

Alsace is a region with a rich brewing tradition: beer has held a special place here for centuries. It's the cornerstone of the local products of Alsace's terroir. A reflection of the skill and talent of the master brewers and their expert craft. This artisanal approach produces a diverse range of beers with a variety of flavours and aromas.

Alsace has long been renowned for its superior beers. Its exceptional resources play a significant role, as quality water is a necessity for making exceptional beer. Brewing in Alsace dates back to the Gallo-Roman era, and the earliest written records of brewing in Strasbourg are from the year 961. At that time, most of Alsace's breweries were established by religious orders.

In 1259, the first independent brewer in Strasbourg, under the name Arnoldus Cervisarius, set up shop on Impasse de la Bière near the cathedral. His brewery also included a malting facility. Since then, the number of breweries has grown steadily alongside both legislation (lifting of brewing restrictions after the Revolution) and technological innovations (industrial use of steam boilers and the invention of refrigeration machines in the 19th century).

Today, Alsace is dedicated to celebrating its rich brewing heritage in a festive spirit. Beer tourism combines brewing traditions and modern methods, exploring hoppy landscapes, as well as learning about heritage and know-how. A wide variety of activities are on offer, including:

- > Brewery visits
- > Tastings and brewing classes
- > Fun and unique activities
- > Hop field walks and themed cycling itineraries
- > Festivals and events
- > Beer gardens (a kind of brewery with a friendly and cosy atmosphere, where simple and local dishes are served)

© Frank Morin - OT Kochersberg

Le saviez-vous ?

- > Alsace is the top producer of beer and hops in France :
 - 60% of French beer is made in Alsace
 - 95% of French hops are grown in Alsace
- > Alsace is the only region in France renowned for both wine and beer.
- > The people of Alsace consume around sixty litres of beer per year (double the French average).
There's a favourite beer for every occasion, and brewers' creations follow the rhythm of the seasons. Traditional Christmas beer, smooth and spiced, is the special brew of the holiday season, while spring brings fresh and fruity beers enjoyed on café terraces when the first rays of sunshine appear.

The brewers of Alsace

There's a rich and diverse range of breweries in Alsace, including both well-known brands and smaller craft breweries. Some of the temples of beer in Alsace include:

- Meteor (in Hochfelden), a family business that has been brewing in Alsace for 8 generations_ www.brasserie-meteor.fr,
- Kronenbourg (in Obernai), the largest brewery in France, producing nearly 700 million litres of beer every year kronenbourg.com,
- Brasserie Licorne (in Saverne) proudly offers a 100% Alsatian beer, exclusively harvested and brewed in the region www.brasserialicorne.com.

The trend of microbreweries, like all across France, is reshaping the brewing sector in Alsace. Today, there are nearly a hundred craft breweries and microbreweries in Alsace, including:

- Brasserie du Vignoble (Ribeauvillé) and its picturesque beer garden amidst the vineyards brasserie-vignoble.fr
- Brasserie Saint-Pierre (Saint-Pierre) and its brewing workshop for creating a unique beer www.lasaintpierre.com
- Brasserie Bisaigüe (Kaysersberg), housed in a centuries-old vaulted cellar www.bisaigüe.alsace
- Les Brasseurs du Ried (Muttersholtz), a brewery that crafts beer 'the old-fashioned way' and hosts conferences on the history of beer brasseurs-du-ried.fr
- Brasserie du Grillen (Colmar), its brewpub, and its beers handcrafted in a former cotton mill brasseriegrillen.com
- Brasserie Uberach (Val de Moder) and its diverse beers made from water sourced from the Northern Vosges www.brasserie-uberach.fr
- Bendorf (Strasbourg), an active participant in the local Strasbourg community brasserie-bendorf.fr
- Banz (Lautenbach), a young non-profit association brewery www.facebook.com
- Brasserie Radwulf (Vieux-Ferrette), a brewery-distillery-brewpub for hanging out and tasting bold and authentic beers www.radwulf.fr
- Brasserie Michel Debus (Schiltigheim), an artisanal brewery with a contemporary decor that serves refined cuisine www.brasserie-michel-debus.com

In Alsace, as elsewhere, beer enthusiasts are known for their good humour and joie de vivre. Alsace's tumultuous history led to its inheritance of German customs, and the region continues to cultivate its long tradition of conviviality. Beer is enjoyed around a Stammtisch (a shared table), in a Bierstub (a type of brasserie with a warm and friendly atmosphere serving simple local dishes) or in a Biergarten (a concept originating in Bavaria, a beer garden is an outdoor shaded and welcoming terrace serving pub-style food).

Beer experiences in Alsace

> Brewery visits

- The oldest brewing site in France

In the town of Hochfelden surrounded by hop fields, Villa Meteor invites visitors to discover its unique brewing heritage and its carefully guarded secrets. Next to the famous brewery of the same name, Alsace's last remaining large independent brewery, the tour explores the beer-making process and the history of the company. The Haag family have been master brewers for eight generations, a success story spanning from 1640 to the present day. Their intimate memories are on display in the old family house. The tour is a dive into the history of malt, barley, hops, and the secrets to creating this bubbly nectar.

- Inside the old Kronenbourg brewery in Strasbourg

From 1862 until the 1990s, Kronenbourg brewed its beer in Strasbourg's Cronenbourg district. After relocating to Obernai, the historic brewery and canning factory gave way to the eco-district of La Brasserie, a project that preserved and restored the former brewing hall. On this site today is the Labbb, a brewpub and a space for brewing experiments. Besides enjoying the beers brewed on-site, visitors can see the preserved and renovated vats of the old Kronenbourg brewery. There's something for everyone at the brewing workshops held every Saturday, including brewery visits, beerology, and beer pairings.

restaurants.3brasseurs.com/fr

- The new home of Brasserie Perle

In 2023, the historic Perle brewery relocated to a brand-new building in the heart of Strasbourg's Marché-Gare district. Eco-friendly and larger than the former site in Meinau, the new facility has increased production capacity as well as more room for its spacious bierstub. There's even a beer garden for sunny days, much to the delight of visitors.

Brewery tours are offered every Saturday: after a brief introduction to the family history of the brewery and the brand, visitors learn about the three stages of making Perle: cooking, magic, and technology. The tour includes a tasting journey featuring 4 beers with diverse characteristics. The focus is also on the new building: a modern production facility designed to minimise energy consumption.

- A craft brewery in the heart of the village of Lapoutroie

While many recent breweries are located on the outskirts of cities, the Pays Welche brewery, founded in 2011, is nestled in the heart of a green oasis in the Kaysersberg Valley. This brewery is deeply rooted in the local area and sources a part of its hops and malt from Alsace. It is the first brewery awarded the Valeur Parc label from the Ballons des Vosges Regional Nature Park. Eager to share their passion for the brewing world, the brewers recently began offering daily guided tours with prior booking. Self-guided tours are also available with no reservation required.

> Tastings and brewing courses

- Brew your own beer at Saint-Pierre

Anchored in the heart of the Alsatian terroir since 2001, the Saint-Pierre craft brewery uses exclusively high-quality ingredients. Visitors can roll up their sleeves, tie up their apron, and become a brewer for a day. A fun and friendly way to hone the craft. Teams tackle all the steps to creating good beer: choice of ingredients, monitoring the fermentation process, and even printing labels. Alongside a passionate brewer, guests learn all about Alsace's world-renowned expertise. And after all that hard work, it's time for a tasting. Everyone leaves with their bottles, as well as a little kit of brewing equipment to practice at home.

- Alsace Beer Trip: a craft brewery tour in a minibus

Olivier, a former lifeguard, now organises brewery tours. He takes passengers aboard his minivan to share his passion for craft beer in a friendly atmosphere. A great way to explore the incredible diversity of microbreweries in the Colmar region, meet passionate local brewers, and most importantly: taste their beer.

- Beerology workshop in a rural, shared-space microbrewery

Elliott and Etienne founded Les Semblables in Mietesheim with the intention of modelling a new way to run a brewery. For example, it's the only brewery in France to use wood to heat its range of sustainable beers. At their beerology workshop, participants discover the microbrewery and its beers on a memorable, aromatic, and friendly adventure.

www.brasserie-semblables.fr

> Fun and unique activities

- France's first beer spa

Opened in January 2022, the Taaka Beer Spa is the first of its kind in France. Inspired by the concept well-known in Hungary and the Czech Republic, the spa offers an original experience combining the relaxing setting of a spa with the convivial values of the world of brewing. Following a sauna session, guests can unwind in a larch wood tub to soak up the benefits of the natural ingredients used in beer brewing (malt, hops, and brewer's yeast). The experience is paired with tastings of beers and beverages from local micro-breweries.

- The treasure hunt from Échappée Bière

This treasure hunt is a fun and original way to discover Strasbourg and its brewing history, all while savouring a few beers. Participants set off through the streets of Strasbourg in the footsteps of a 16th-century brewer, Beatus Cervisus, to unveil the secret hiding place of the recipe for his Humanis beer.

The game booklet is filled with riddles that lead players around the city to find the four places to stop for a blind beer tasting. A great way to discover the city and its brewing history, all while learning about beer.

- "Bierburg Games" in the castles of Alsace

A fun activity showcasing the region's castral heritage, these escape-game tastings are held in several castles in Alsace throughout 2024. Participants have one hour to help a lost soul trapped within the castle walls by finding the Rhine chalice that will set them free. This interactive experience is led by actors and paired with a beer tasting.

The activity is supported by the European Union as part of the "Rhine Castles - Burgen am Oberrhein" project www.billetweb.fr/chateau-fortescape

Hop field walks and cycling routes

The landscapes of Alsace have been shaped in part by brewing traditions, especially in Kochersberg, the region's top hop producer. Self-guided or guided walking and cycling tours are a perfect way to explore and appreciate the area.

> Walking

In Wingersheim-les-Quatre-Bans, the hop capital of Alsace, the hop discovery trail (4.5 km) offers unparalleled views of the hop fields. Walkers can follow the signposted trail or join a guided tour organised by members of the Au Cœur des Houblonnières d'Alsace association from mid-April to late September.

> Cycling

There are two itineraries on the Alsace by Bike website:

· The Beers and Hops loop (25 km), starts in the brewing hub of Hochfelden and explores the hills overlooking Strasbourg Cathedral, passing through charming little villages including Hohatzenheim with its Romanesque basilica. In the hop capital of Wingersheim, cyclists can explore the culture and virtues of the plant while savouring its aromas with a farm-brewed craft beer. The return journey follows the canal along the twists and turns of the Zorn River.

www.cyclinginalsace.com

· The itinerary From Val-de-Moder to the Land of the Hop Fields (72 km) follows an easy forest road through the forest of Haguenau. Starting in Pfaffenhoffen, the main town in Val-de-Moder, the journey explores the agricultural villages of the Hanau area. Hills, forests, and cereal crops shape the landscape. The arrival in the brewing town of Hochfelden marks a change in scenery. After crossing the Zorn Valley and the Marne-au-Rhin Canal, the ride to Haguenau is bordered by hop vines. www.cyclinginalsace.com

© Mon week-end en Alsace

· For the more sporty, a cross-border cycle route of almost 400 km entitled "Beer & Brewing Culture" takes you on a discovery of the brewing heritage and the many breweries in Alsace, the southern Palatinate and the Land of Baden.

As well as crossing a variety of landscapes, from the Rhine plain to charming little villages and big cities, this pleasant tour also promises to give you a chance to appreciate beer in all its aspects and to discover the diversity of the art of brewing in France and Germany. vis-a-vis-pamina.eu

Festivals and events

Of the numerous festivals and events held in Alsace every year, several are dedicated to beer:

- April: Bendorf Festival (Strasbourg): Created by the brewery of the same name, the event has concerts, entertainment, and beer tastings.
- May: Fête des Brasseurs (Val-de-Moder): A traditional brewer's celebration honouring Val-de-Moder's brewing heritage.
- Early June: Au Gré des Bières (Strasbourg): Organised by the Syndicat des Brasseurs d'Alsace, the event highlights the diversity of Alsatian brews, their unique qualities, and the art of tasting (held every two years, next edition in 2025).
- End of June: Expo de la Bière (Strasbourg): A beer trade show catering to both enthusiasts and curious drinkers.
- 1st weekend in August: Schiltigheim beer festival (renamed the Fête des Brasseurs d'Alsace starting in 2024): Held for more than 40 years in this brewing town, the event is a cherished tradition. A festive, popular, and family-oriented summer beer festival.
- Late August: Saverne beer festival: Live music and tastings of Licorne, locally brewed in Saverne.
- September: s'Meteor Bierfescht in Hochfelden: A three-day authentic Alsatian beer festival held under a lively big tent.
- End of September: Strasbourg Craft Beer Festival (Strasbourg): A festival dedicated to local artisanal beer.

3. Alsace's 2023 tourism trophies

Sponsored by 3 partners - the Alsace Tourist Office Network, Crédit Agricole, and Alsace Destination Tourisme - the Alsace Tourism Trophies recognise and celebrate initiatives that enhance the tourism potential of the Alsace destination, by both associations and private businesses of all sizes. The organising sponsors offer their skills and expertise to support the candidates in their projects.

The Trophies feature 5 categories, 2 Jury's Favourite awards, and 1 Village by CA award.
Here are the 8 winners:

Cloître des Récollets > SAVERNE

This 14th-century Gothic architectural gem is one of the most beautiful cloisters in Alsace. Initially a convent, it later became a Latin school. In the 17th century, it housed shops and passing troops before becoming a women's college and later an annex of the Poincaré middle school. Today it hosts cultural events, performances, exhibitions, and houses the Tourist Office of Pays de Saverne.

Murals under its arches depict biblical and religious scenes inspired by the Counter-Reformation. This serene site also includes a monastery garden cultivating vegetables as well as medicinal, aromatic, and ornamental plants.

The cloister is open for self-guided visits during the opening hours of the Tourist Office.

The new planetarium at the Jardin des Sciences > STRASBOURG

In the Neustadt district, at the heart of the historic university campus, the Jardin des Sciences of the University of Strasbourg is a true cultural hub with a planetarium, museums, and gardens. Open to everyone, it's a place for stargazing, admiring heritage collections, participating in workshops and guided tours, or engaging with figures from the scientific community. There's also a full cultural programme of events held in Strasbourg and throughout Alsace.

The new planetarium invites visitors on a journey through the universe to explore planets, nebulae, and galaxies on a 15-m-tall, 360° dome projection screen and an astronomical simulator. The film on astronomy and the efforts of the educational team aim to raise awareness on observing the starry sky. This space immersion takes places in a brand-new cone-shaped building next to the welcome area of the Jardin des Sciences. A place for experimenting and encounters, the planetarium hosts numerous events related to both current space developments and scientific research data. Visitors can also enjoy concerts, screenings, and other festive and artistic events.

Albert Schweitzer Centre for peace > KAYSERSBERG

A tribute to the great humanist doctor and 1952 Nobel Peace Prize recipient.

The Albert Schweitzer Museum originally portrayed the Nobel Peace Prize laureate's journey in Africa, his humanitarian health efforts, and his fight against nuclear weapons. The site has evolved into a more ambitious project: the Centre Schweitzer - In the Footsteps of the Nobel Peace Prize, an interpretive centre focused on raising awareness of the universal message of peace.

With its bold installations and use of technology, visiting this unique place in Alsace is a fun and original experience, centred around the humanist principles dear to the 'first doctor without borders': freedom, tolerance, and mutual respect. By upholding these values, the Schweitzer Centre is an international reference on the theme of peace.

Memorial Museum of the Colmar Pocket > TURCKHEIM

In the heart of a medieval town, the Memorial Museum of the Battles of the Colmar Pocket – Winter 1944/45 is housed in an 18th century cellar that sheltered the inhabitants of Turckheim during World War II. The site bears witness to two intense months of fighting around Colmar, focusing on the participants in the conflict and the technology and equipment of the time. The museum examines every phase of the battle while highlighting the plight of the civilians. Recent additions include new characters in the dioramas: a Moroccan Goumier from the 1st French Army, German mountain hunters, and even a young soldier—a 3-year-old child dressed in military attire alongside a magnificent blue, white, and red rocking horse. Visitors can explore the museum with an audio-guided tour or on a smartphone. New signage accompanies the pieces on display, and QR codes bring the objects and characters to life. Because what matters here is also THEIR story.

Dan Gerbo Contemporary Art Museum > MULHOUSE

Dan Gerbo, as he is known in the art world, has opened his museum in Mulhouse. The central theme revolves around "pointing out greed, not to lecture, but with humour". The artist captivates with his fearless audacity and approach to societal topics. His works, displayed in Paris, Shanghai, Miami, and Houston, are creations that blend provocation and contemplation. The sensual display showcases paintings, but is mostly dedicated to conceptual sculptures, often representing luxury objects turned into something else. Two-thirds of the all-white, 1,000 m² space features around fifty works from Dan Gerbo. The rest is divided into an area for emerging or established artists from the tri-national region, and another for galleries of local and international pictorial art.

New Art and Electricity space at the Electropolis Museum > MULHOUSE

The new Art and Electricity space at Mulhouse's Electropolis Museum showcases around ten spectacular works, highlighting the fundamental relationship between art and electricity. It tells the story of how artists initially depicted electricity and later utilised its magnetic, luminous, and sonic effects. From Raoul Dufy's famous painted fairy to Bernard Caillaux's algorithmic digital paintings, and Man Ray's rayographs, this new space establishes a connection between art and industry. Its creation was made possible by a significant deposit of works from the EDF Group Foundation collected over more than thirty years of art exhibitions in its Parisian space.

Africa area at Mulhouse's Zoo and Botanical Park> MULHOUSE

In 2024, the Zoo and Botanical Gardens of Mulhouse (m2A), a European centre for conservation and knowledge, will welcome around fifty species as ambassadors of African biodiversity in a new space named Horizon Afrique. For the first time in Mulhouse, giraffes, pygmy hippos, venomous snakes, and amphibians will be showcased to the public. This is the largest project undertaken by Mulhouse's Zoo and Botanical Gardens (m2A) since its creation 155 years ago. It required significant developments over 1.5 ha, including 1 ha of savannah, an immersive 1,200 m² building for giraffes, 11 terrariums, a multi-species aquarium, a 500 m² immersive tropical greenhouse featuring aquavision for the pygmy hippos and crocodiles, as well as 2 islands to host guenon monkeys.

The project aligns with the park's missions and aims to:

- Raise awareness among visitors about the conservation of two endangered African ecosystems (the Upper Guinean rainforest, shrub savanna) by presenting species in their natural habitats and providing an immersive and educational experience,
- Offer an immersive visit with different viewing areas to observe the animals both on land and in aquariums and terrariums,
- Introduce new species as a part of conservation programmes: giraffes, gazelles, red-necked ostriches, pygmy hippos, amphibians, reptiles, and endangered insects.

Other species already in the park will join the new African space for their well-being: to support their conservation in optimal conditions and promote breeding for reintroduction into their original natural habitats once they have been protected.

From May 4 to September 23, 2024, the Unterlinden Museum in Colmar, the Beaux-Arts et d'Archéologie Museum in Besançon and the Beaux-Arts Museum in Dijon are presenting 3 parts of an original exhibition devoted to German painting in French collections.

At the Unterlinden Museum, the exhibition entitled "Color, Glory and Beauty. Germanic paintings in french collections (1420-1540)" is designed to echo the museum's collections of early paintings, whose holdings include exceptional ensembles of painted panels, including its masterpiece, the Issenheim Altarpiece. It focuses on paintings produced in the Upper Rhine region, and features over sixty works attributed to renowned artists such as Martin Schongauer, Albrecht Dürer and Hans Baldung Grien, as well as (re)discoveries by Caspar Isenmann, Jost Haller, Wilhelm Stetter and the Master of Drapery Studies.

700th anniversary of the marriage of Joanna of Pfirt and Albert II of Habsburg > ALSACE > March to November 2024

Alsace, the cradle of the Habsburg dynasty, will celebrate the 700th anniversary of the marriage of Joanna of Pfirt and Albert II of Habsburg, sealed on 17 March 1324 in Thann.

All the Habsburgs, sovereigns of Europe for six centuries, are descendants of this union. The collegiate church of Thann, one of Europe's most remarkable Gothic churches, was built during the time of the early dukes of Austria.

Numerous festivities will take place in Alsace:

·Thann: conferences, solemn mass, concerts, and more. With the presence of HSH Prince Albert II of Monaco on 16 and 17 March 2024.

·Ferrette (Pfirt): Medieval festival around Joanna of Pfirt in June and the exhibition "The Counts of Ferrette and Their Legacy" at the Espace Muséal from 15 May to 22 September.

·Ottmarsheim: 4 concerts of ancient music at the abbey from March to May 2024 and the exhibition "Joanna of Pfirt" from 2 April to 22 May.

·Ensisheim: international expert symposium with 11 conferences dedicated to the Habsburgs on 15 and 16 September, and an exhibition with archival elements from the 15th to 18th century from 18 October to 17 November.

The association "Jeanne de Ferrette 1324-2024" is coordinating the festivities in Haute-Alsace. More information to come:

Colmar fête le Printemps > COLMAR > from 28 March to 21 April 2024

Colmar welcomes the arrival of Spring in its own festive and convivial way. Visitors bask in the first rays of sunshine on a stroll through the mini-farm set up in the town and the two markets, Easter and Spring, in the enchanting, flower-filled historic centre. The colourful chalets of the market host 70 artisans, rigorously selected for their authenticity.

For three weeks, the city is decorated in the colours of Easter and Spring: mischievous rabbits in flower beds, chickens and eggs along the river, and vibrant leaves in the trees. The atmosphere is cheerful and colourful, perfect for leaving the winter blues behind and celebrating the arrival of sunny days.

It's a wonderful event to share with family or friends, for exploring Colmar in a different light and experiencing the inter-religious Easter traditions, another highlight in the calendar of Alsace.

Exhibition René Lalique, the inventor of modern jewellery > WINGEN-SUR-MODER > from 1 May to 3 November

Before becoming the great master of Art Deco glass, René Lalique (1860-1945) made a name for himself during the Art Nouveau period. Regarded by Émile Gallé as the inventor of modern jewellery, he brought unexpected innovations to his creations, in terms of both inspiration and materials. A keen observer of nature since childhood, René Lalique drew inspiration from exploring the plants and wildlife of the Northern Vosges, a significant part of his imagination. Allegories, winged figures, aquatic divinities, and also women are also omnipresent in his work. Curious and open-minded, he enriched his creative realm through reading, museum visits, and exchanges with his artist friends. He was well-informed about discoveries from Egyptian, Greek, or Etruscan excavations, treasures of the Middle Ages and the Renaissance, and the distinctive creations of Byzantium, the Caucasus, the Far East, and even America. The exhibition will showcase Lalique's creations through the materials used and the artist's sources of inspiration.

Exhibition "Sport in Alsace-Moselle under Nazism - 1940-1945" - Alsace Moselle Memorial > SCHIRMECK > 18 May to 15 September

The exhibition tells both the famous and lesser-known histories of sport in Alsace and Moselle between 1940 and 1945 through posters, unpublished photographs, and portraits of athletes. Following France's defeat in June 1940, these territories were de facto annexed by the Third Reich. The swiftly established totalitarian regime affected all aspects of daily life. Controlling leisure activities proved an effective means of surveillance over the population. The Nazi regime thus immediately took over all sports federations. They were used to control the population, indoctrinate the youth, and glorify new heroes of the nation. Football, gymnastics, boxing, swimming: all sports in Alsace and Moselle were under Nazi control. Nevertheless, the practice of sports persisted. Some viewed sports as a means of escape from the Nazi grasp, while others used it as a form of resistance. Starting in 1942, however, engaging in sports became increasingly challenging due to compulsory conscription and the deployment of young men to the Eastern Front. A different approach to sport for an Olympic year!

slowUp > Alsace Wine Route > 1 June 2024

slowUp is the foremost tourist event in Alsace, with tens of thousands of participants. It's a not-to-be-missed day for cycling and wine tourism in Alsace. Held on the first Sunday of June from 10 am to 6 pm, the route is closed to traffic and reserved for cyclists and pedestrians, with or without rollerblades. The itinerary connects the towns of Dambach-la-Ville, Châtenois, Bergheim, and Sélestat, to name a few, weaving through the Alsatian vineyards at the foot of Haut-Koenigsbourg Castle. The full route covers 31 km, but there are shorter loops starting from 8 km. There are 13 festive stops along the way offering fun activities and tastings. This celebratory, sporty, and gourmet day honours the Alsace Wine Route, the winemakers opening their wineries, and the *Véloroute du Vignoble. Activities all day long, free access with no registration required all along the route.

* The Véloroute du Vignoble is a nearly 140-km cycle route, mostly on bike paths, running along the foothills of the Vosges Mountains from Marlenheim to Thann.

Exhibitions at Hartmannswillerkopf > WATTWILLER > March to November 2024

In 2024, Hartmannswillerkopf will commemorate the centenary of the National Monument Committee with two exceptional exhibitions.

The first, entitled Tracing the Funeral and Memorial Sites of World War I in the Vosges Mountains, will introduce visitors to the sites added last autumn to the World Heritage list - from 29 March to 26 May 2024.

The second exhibition called The Man Eater will portray the destinies of the French and German soldiers who fought the intense battles of December 1915 at Hartmannswillerkopf - from 1 June to 17 November 2024.

The calendar also includes several events at the Historical and on the battlefield. On 28 May, a string quartet from the Mulhouse Symphony Orchestra will interpret works accompanied by readings of soldiers' texts. On 19 and 20 October, Living History Days will be introduced for the first time, aiming to establish a connection between soldiers of the past and present.

Starting on 29 March 2024, the memorial site is open 7 days a week.

“On va vous chouchouter à Obernai” event > Krautergersheim > the month of September

In Alsace, September is synonymous with harvests, both grapes and the emblematic sauerkraut cabbage. Half of the sauerkraut consumed in France is primarily produced in two villages near Obernai: Meistratzheim and Krautergersheim, the capital of sauerkraut (literally the "cabbage village" in Alsatian).

The end of summer marks the arrival of new sauerkraut, celebrated with grand festivities.

700 years Treaty/Duchy of Württemberg

Under the rule of the Counts of Württemberg from 1324 to 1796, Riquewihr honours a European royal family in its own way in 2024.

Riquewihr will host an exhibition from 14 July to 14 October to celebrate the 700th anniversary of the signing of the Treaty of Württemberg. The event is curated by the State Archives of Baden-Württemberg, based in Stuttgart, under the guidance of Professor Peter Rückert.

The historical and cultural exhibition, open to all, will immerse visitors in the history of Württemberg on a site that once belonged to this illustrious House. It will focus on politics, religion, and art, as well as the economic ties and cultural interdependencies between France and Germany.

A site for biking > WANGENBURG-ENGENTHAL

© ComCom de la Mossig et du Vignoble

This project, led by the towns of Mossig & Vignoble as part of their nature and sports development policy, is a leisure park dedicated to developing bike skills, featuring mountain biking trails in the forest. The welcome building offers diverse services including bike rentals, small equipment for sale, washing and repair stations, a snack bar, changing rooms with showers, a seminar room, and more.

The fun and adaptive learning park includes a pump track, an area for learning manoeuvring and technical skills, downhill tracks for different levels, jump lines, and a landing mattress. The activities can be supervised or unsupervised. This new offering complements a range of open-access outdoor activities in the surrounding forest and throughout the entire area (hiking, mountain biking, trail running, climbing passes, etc.).

Expected opening in spring 2025.

Musée d'Orient > STRASBOURG

© BNU

© BNU

A museum of the Orient at the National and University Library of Strasbourg (BNU) is planned to open in 2025. This new space of 500 to 600 m² will offer visitors a fascinating dive into the history and culture of the Orient, taking advantage of the BNU's vast collection on religion. The museum will be housed in the former exhibition halls of the library, which have been renovated and adapted to showcase the precious objects of oriental art. Visitors will be able to admire a vast collection of art and crafts from different countries in Asia and the Middle East.

Highlights of the collection are the Persian carpets, Arabic calligraphy, Buddhist sculptures, Chinese ceramics, Indian textiles, and clay tablets with cuneiform writing. Other wonders include one of the most significant French collections of Egyptian papyrus. Experienced guides will be available to provide detailed explanations for each exhibited piece, helping visitors better understand the historical and cultural contexts in which they were created.

With its rich collection and experienced staff, the museum will be an essential visit for anyone looking to discover and appreciate the wonders of the Orient.

Renovation and redevelopment of the Zoological Museum > STRASBOURG

An intriguing cabinet of curiosities, the objectives of the museum's renovation include modernising the collections, streamlining the scenography, showcasing the reserves, improving the visitor experience, and developing scientific engagement programmes for diverse audiences. Upon completion, 2,600 m² will be dedicated to the museum, including 2,000 m² for exhibitions (compared to 1,500 m² previously) and 600 m² for the reception area, school groups, and educational workshops. There will also be administrative areas, reserves, logistical spaces, higher education facilities, and technical rooms. The four exhibition spaces will address different themes: the animal world, local ecosystems, global biodiversity, and nature in the laboratory. The reopening is scheduled for 2025.

Immersive memorial monument on the site of the Alsace-Moselle Memorial > SCHIRMECK

The memorial monument project selected by the Grand Est Region pays tribute to the Alsace-Moselle citizens who died or went missing during the Second World War. The project is designed by the Benoît Zeimett Architecte agency, in collaboration with Scénographia and the museographer Martine Thomas-Bourgneuf. The building aims to be immersive and interactive. The names of nearly 40,000 Alsace-Moselle residents who lost their lives during the Second World War will be displayed on a wall, except for those who voluntarily joined the Nazi forces. The display will include photographs, archival documents, and an outdoor space for contemplation. The building will be situated below the Alsace-Moselle Memorial. The monument, estimated at €1.88 million, is expected to open in 2025. Its name has not yet been released.

Villa Cose 5-star hotel & spa > COLMAR

A 5-star hotel project is set to flourish in Colmar's quaint and charming Petite Venise district in 2025. In the heart of the city, on the banks of the Lauch River, 47 acres of wooded land and an Art Nouveau villa are the incredible and sublime setting of this high-end establishment that will naturally complement Colmar's hotel offerings. Spearheaded by Nicolas Decker, owner and manager of Cheneaudière & Spa (Relais & Châteaux in Colroy-la-Roche, 45 km from Colmar), this future upscale hotel will offer 23 rooms and suites, an exceptional spa, and an intimate restaurant concept. The historic villa will house the bar, lounges, and dining areas, while the rooms, suites, and spa will be situated in a new building. The site is next to the departure point for boat rides and boasts a tranquil and magical ambiance despite being in the historic centre. The ensemble will create a peaceful and harmonious space.

A project valued at €12 million, excluding VAT.
